

New To English - Verbs

Hello! What are you DOING today ?

Videos

You could watch the videos more than once. You do not need to watch all of them. You could watch 2 and do 1 'interactive' one (see the next page /over the page) a day over the week.

If it helps, you could pause the videos and translate (Google Translate) the words into your home language to make sure you understand what each word means.

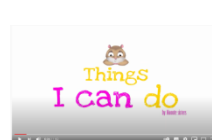

Sorry, some have adverts that you may have to skip to get to the correct video.

There are lots of other videos to help, some are better than others! Please let me know if you find any good ones that you like. ☺

Can you say what the verb is before the whole picture is shown?

<https://es.islcollective.com/video-lessons/i-like-to-move->

Find this video on the link page. It is interactive. Some the body, some action verbs and one a noun (thing).

Click on the word and the picture to match. You can click on the speaker symbol to hear the word in English.

You may find other videos or online activities to do to learn about action verbs that you like better. You do not have to use what I have given you.

Please let us know if you find any other free links that would be helpful for other children to learn English. Thank you. 😊

If you are doing this at home: It would be helpful if you could talk about what you are doing every day with somebody. For example you walk and say, 'I walk.' Then ask the other person/people - 'What are you doing?' They reply with - 'I sit / stand/ drink /read.' etc.

You can also say I am walking/ standing/ reading/ drinking.'

What are you doing?

I talk. / I am talking.

It would be very helpful if you could talk about the body parts and feelings/emotions during the day too so that these are not forgotten.
